HOW DOING LESS BUILT THE MOST TRUSTED TEAM IN THE BUILDING

Right now, 51% of your team members are looking for another job – not just for better pay, but for the autonomy nobody's giving them.

I ran a £130 million team by refusing to make all of the decisions myself. It's the same method I now teach leaders at organisations like Red Bull Racing, ASOS and the NHS.

WHAT YOU'LL WALK AWAY WITH

1. THE DELEGATION WOBBLE

Most managers delegate once, panic, and steal the work back again. Here's how to actually let go and know that your team will thrive.

2. THE ONLY QUESTION YOU NEED TO ASK

Ask it once, and your team starts making decisions even when you're not in the room.

3. "CONGRATULATIONS! YOU'LL NEVER DO THAT AGAIN!"

Turn your team's mistakes into ownership instead of blame, in one simple line.
